Declaration Requirements

Any employee involved in supplier selection, contract negotiation, or approval must declare a potential conflict of interest within five business days of becoming aware of it. Declarations are recorded in the Conflicts Register maintained by the Ethics and Compliance Office.

- A personal or family relationship with a supplier representative.
- Any financial interest in a bidding or contracted supplier.
- Outside employment or directorship with a supplier or competitor.
- Prior employment with a bidding supplier within the last 24 months.

Gift and Hospitality Limits

Gifts and hospitality must never influence a procurement decision. The following limits apply per supplier per calendar year.

Category	Limit	Approval Required
Promotional items	Up to $50	None
Meals and hospitality	Up to $150	Line manager
Event or conference invitations	Up to $500	Head of Department + Ethics Office
Any cash or cash equivalent	Prohibited	Not permitted under any circumstance

Gifts received during an active tender or negotiation must be declined regardless of value, and the offer must be reported to the Ethics and Compliance Office within two business days.

Breach Consequences

Failure to declare a conflict of interest or acceptance of a prohibited gift is treated as a disciplinary matter. Where a breach affects a live procurement, the Ethics and Compliance Office may require the tender to be re-run and the individual recused from all related decisions.
